Dear Professor [Last Name],

I am writing in advance regarding a scheduling conflict with [class / lab / assignment / examination] on [date(s)]. I observe the Jewish holiday of [holiday name], and my religious practices will prevent me from participating during [specific dates and times].

I take my academic responsibilities seriously and would appreciate discussing a reasonable way to complete the missed academic requirement. If possible, I would like to request [proposed alternative: an alternate examination time / an extension / an opportunity to complete the lab or classwork].

Please let me know what documentation or university process is appropriate. I would be glad to coordinate ahead of time to minimize disruption.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

[Your name]

[Student ID, if appropriate]

PERSONALIZATION NOTES

- Confirm the actual holiday dates and the observance period for your practice and location.
- Check your institution’s published religious accommodation policy and submission timeline.
- Only include details you are comfortable sharing, and avoid claiming that every Jewish student follows identical practices.

Educational template only. Requirements differ by institution and jurisdiction; this does not replace legal or institutional advice.
